Dear Ms. Chatterjee:

The Committee on Oversight and Government Reform is investigating politicized jury nullification initiatives undertaken in the District of Columbia. Free DC, in coordination with Harriet's Wildest Dreams, has held jury nullification training sessions to instruct potential jurors in how to navigate juror vetting and subvert lawful prosecutions in the District of Columbia.¹ Leaders at these public sessions brazenly declared radical intentions. At an August 12 training, Quiana Johnson, who serves on the Board of Harriet's Wildest Dreams and is a "conductor of legal defense" for the organization,² told attendees, "[y]ou have this superpower, and that superpower is you are able to nullify that goddamn jury."³ This strategy appears aimed to nullify one of the core rights enshrined in the United States Constitution for criminal cases: "the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State or district wherein the crime shall have been committed."⁴ In conducting these trainings, your organization is blatantly facilitating the violation of the constitutional right to an impartial jury and undermining the rule of law in the District. Accordingly, to further its oversight, the Committee requests that Free DC produce documents and communications related to Free DC's jury nullification training.

Free DC and Harriet's Wildest Dreams are conducting jury nullification training, with the intent of having activists serve on juries in criminal cases to acquit defendants and subvert prosecutions.⁵ Free DC and Harriet's Wildest Dream reportedly hosted a training session on July 15, 2026, where the organizations discussed how to "influence outcomes to help create a more equitable legal process."⁶ The advertisement for this session stated that those serving on a jury can, “use that role to protect our people especially those with marginalized identities.”⁷ These training sessions instruct attendees on how to present themselves, falsely, as unbiased and avoid revealing ties to prison abolitionist groups during jury selection to intentionally hide their true intentions for serving on a jury.⁸ Free DC also publicly boasted that it used juror trainings for “power” to halt prosecutions.⁹ Free DC is fiscally sponsored by organizations financed by left-wing dark money groups that fund other radical entities conducting jury nullification workshops.¹⁰ Freedom Trainers, one of the organizations that Free DC partners with,¹¹ provided instructions at a workshop for trainees to “get on a jury to vote [their] conscience,” which included, “never mention jury nullification. Don’t signal the agenda.”¹²

At the August 12 jury nullification training that Free DC co-hosted, Quiana Johnson, of Harriet’s Wildest Dreams, reportedly stated that a juror for the prosecution of former Department of Justice employee Sean Dunn likely attended one of the jury nullification trainings.¹³ Mr. Dunn was charged with misdemeanor assault for throwing food at a law enforcement officer and was acquitted after a seven-hour jury deliberation.¹⁴ Ms. Johnson reportedly made clear at this training session that one of the goals is to undermine prosecutions brought by the U.S. Attorney for the District of Columbia and other federal prosecutors.¹⁵ In referring to these trainings, she stated, “[t]hat is what Jeanine Pirro is absolutely afraid of...that is what the lawyers in Luigi [Mangione’s] case is absolutely afraid of, because that power belongs to the people.”¹⁶ U.S. Attorney Pirro has said she suspects biased individuals have infiltrated juries to “upset the verdict.”¹⁷ It is clear that the position of Free DC and Harriet’s Wildest Dreams is that potential jurors should not make decisions impartially based on applying the law as instructed to the facts presented before them in the case, but based on their subjective, personal beliefs and activist agendas.

These shocking reports underscore the necessity of congressional oversight to protect against an assault targeting constitutional rights and processes. Jury nullification training courses undermine the rule of law, the safety of D.C.’s residents, and erode public trust in the justice system and our Constitution’s guarantee of an impartial jury.
